Description:

John Lawton's debut novel—first published by Viking in 1995, and now being reissued by Grove Press—is a stunning, war-time thriller that cements his place among the greatest crime writers of our era. The first of the Inspector Troy novels, Black Out singularly captures the realities of wartime London, weaving them into a riveting drama that encapsulates the uncertainty of Europe at the dawn of the postwar era. London, 1944. While the Luftwaffe makes its final assault on the already battered British capital, Londoners rush through the streets, seeking underground shelter in the midst of the city's black out. When the panic subsides, other things begin to surface along with London's war-worn citizens. A severed arm is discovered by a group of children playing at an East End bomb site, and when Scotland Yard's Dective Sergeant Frederick Troy arrives at the scene, it becomes apparent that the dismembered body is not the work of a V-1 rocket. After Troy manages to link the severed arm to the disappearance of a refugee scientist from Nazi Germany, America's newest intelligence agency, the OSS, decides to get involved. The son of a titled Russian émigré, Troy is forced to leave the London he knows and enter a corrupt world of bloody consequences, stateless refugees, and mysterious women as he unearths a chain of secrets leading straight to the Allied high command.

I read a review of John Lawton's latest in the Spectator and bought it straight away, ate it up, thoroughly enjoyed it, and started in on Black Out. Lawton's hero Troy is a well-bred, slightly alienated and rather good young copper on the Metropolitan Police's murder squad in 1944 London. The story is cracking, intrigue and multiple murder of German scientists centred on Ikes command post in Grosvenor Square. MI5 also get a look in. The presence of a bombed out and depressed London is presented beautifully. The characters are human with their anger, frustration and affection faithfully portrayed. And it's all rather exciting. The style reminded me of another author... Then I recognised a bit player - a fat man, big, bald, in Heavy Rescue gear, looking after a pig in a ruined garden square in Chelsea. He was none other than an unnamed Magersfontein Lugg, the uncouth manservant to Albert Campion, who appears in this guise in Margery Allingham's Coroner's Piggin, published in 1945. I liked this respectful and funny homage very much. Lawton is not quite as funny as Allingham, but nearly as sly. Allingham can be annoying, Lawton is not. I thoroughly recommend fans of classic crime fiction to give Lawton a look, so long as they don't mind the authentic swearing and sex that Allingham and Sayers delicately skipped over.
